

Karah Estate Vineyard – 2010 Pinot Noir, Sonoma Coast

Winemaker Jason Baker's Notes

The 2010 Estate Pinot Noir is redolent with aromas of pomegranate, cherry, and clove and is beautifully balanced, round, silky, and seamless. Its long and expressive finish reveals flavors of raspberry, red plum, and strawberry (alcohol 14.3%).

Anna Maria's Notes

The Karah wines are all expressions of the cool and windy hills on which the vines grow. They are elegant and restrained but with fine aromas and flavors of cherry and spice. Serve at cool room temperature with mild flavored foods like frittata, risotto, salmon, and roasted pork tenderloin.

PRETENDING TO KNOW SOMETHING ABOUT WINE SINCE 2015.

2010 Pinot Noir: Ruby and ruddy in color. Blackberries, roses, coffee grounds and farmyard on the nose. Blackberry jam, cocoa powder, coffee, vanilla, oak, baking spice & red pepper on the tongue. This would be a great steak wine. We stumbled across Karah Estate Vineyards wandering along the highway and decided to poke our heads in for a look. One of the best pit stops we've ever had. If you're heading up the 101 to Healdsburg or Santa Rosa, schedule in an hour long break around exit 479. You can thank us later.

Karah Estate Vineyards is in Cotati, in the Petaluma Gap region of the Sonoma Coast AVA. It's literally two seconds off the 101 just north of Petaluma. We can't imagine a reason not to swing by there if you're on the 101 and have the time. At least think about. Seriously, it's right off the highway.
